

SWIMMING POOL MAKEOVER

This home overlooking Sydney's beautiful Burraneer Bay had an existing swimming pool which was in very poor condition. Tiled in out-dated 60 x 60 mosaics, many of the tiles were falling off the walls and floor due to poor workmanship, and like the inside of the pool, the dark, uninviting terracotta tiles on the pool surrounds also needed updating.

Before

In addition to the aesthetics, the pool required a number of structural repairs, and replacement of the pool equipment. A substantial job for some, however thanks to the experience and expertise of the team at Design Pools, this pool has been completely restored to what looks like a sparkling, brand new pool, and the owners couldn't be more thrilled.

To undertake the work, the entire pool needed to be gutted, this included the removal of all the existing tiles and the cement render. Structural repairs were undertaken, and some plumbing points were also moved to allow for better water circulation and filtration. The entire pool was re-rendered and waterproofed, ready to replace the interior of the pool with the stunning new 20 x20mm Ezarri glass mosaic tiles.

Before

The pool was fitted with a new filtration system, new pump, chlorinator, and a robotic pool cleaner. The unappealing terracotta tiles surrounding the pool were also replaced with a stunning travertine tiles finished with a square edge for a crisp, clean and modern look.

The outcome is a pool as sparkling and as beautiful as the bay on the right.
